演 題 Opening the Path to a Medical Career: From Japan to the U.S., and the Current State of Geriatric Medicine

Yuji Yamada MD, MPH, PhD, FACP

Brookdale Department of Geriatrics and Palliative Medicine,
Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai / Mount Sinai Morningside

In an increasingly interconnected healthcare environment, physicians are presented with diverse paths for professional growth and international collaboration. This lecture provides a comprehensive overview of transitioning from clinical practice in Japan to establishing a career in the United States, highlighting the critical aspects of professional development, medical education, and communication. In addition, the presentation will explore the current landscape and future directions of geriatric medicine and acute care for older adults, drawing from clinical experiences at Mount Sinai Health System in New York. The session aims to provide practical perspectives for medical students, residents, and healthcare professionals interested in global careers, general medicine, and geriatric care.
